Deborah Fisher used a variety of Chroma Basics and Spring 2017 collections to create these dolls.

Bo Twal provides lovely, handmade cloth dolls to children in underdeveloped countries. Needleworkers within the children's country are paid to sew the dolls and distribute them to the boys and girls. The program provides comfort to the children as well as income to the needleworkers. Funds to pay the doll makers are raised through the sale of doll patterns. The Bo Twal Sewing Smiles Doll is the same pattern used by the international needleworkers when they construct the dolls to donate to the children in their country.

Bo Twal means cloth kiss in Haitian Creole.

Bo Twal is a non-profit 501c3.
